Sore Eyes
The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's

Cured

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever. — M1s. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayet's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the bost of blood purifiers.—

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Aver's Suraparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier. — Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year ' th inflamma-tion in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayot's Sarsaparilla, and,

By Taking three bottles of this medleine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or uleer in my eye.—Kendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ralge, Ohio.

T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Rulge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afficied with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. Dining the list two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Surap rilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. L. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.

DECATUR, ILLIAOIS. Entered at the Post Office at Decatur, Illinois, 5 second class mail matter.

MONDAY EVE., AUGUST 1, 1887

Twenty Years Ago. Just twenty years ago to-day, August 1, 1867, the first number of the Decatur REPUBLICAN was issued. It was then a weekly publication, 26x40 inches in size, just the size of the present Daily Re-PUBLICAN. A perusal of the venerable sheet to-day, yellow with ago and of a typographical appearance that would hardly pass muster now, brings to mind recollections of many who have long since crossed the river, of others who have gone elsewhere to seak their fortunes, of still other true and tried friends that are yet among us, (albeit not so young as then) and with eyes now turned towards the past and its glories, rather than towards the future and its promises, as in those days of long ago. The local news in the first number of the paper is of the kind that would naturally pertain to a small town, but even at that early day the subject of base ball occupied a share of public attention, and a lengthy paragraph announcing the defeat of the Atlantics of Chicago by the Nationals of Washington, score 78 to 17, appeared. As a singular coincidence in the matter of dates, the REPUBLICAN of August 1, 1867, announces the defeat of the Nationals by the Forest City Club of Rockford, Ill. There are a good many coincidences in the paper. The following firms and individuals had space in the advertising columns of the paper before us: D. J. Block, furniture.

There is not much politics in the pape before us, 1867 being an off year, though John H. Surratt, for complicity in the assessination of President Lincoln, was in progress at the time, and several paragraphs attest the heated condition of the public mind on the subject. The twenty years that have passed

THE American colony of fugitive bank presidents, forgers and frauds in Canada will be increased one more by R. P. Cloments, the President of the Citizens' Sav ings Bank of Leavenworth. High Prices Produced by the Great Corner in Wheat-A Sudden Collapse Expected.

The American Freight Traffic With Mexico --- The Costs of Refusing to Subsidize Steamship Companies.

Ban Francisco, Aug 1,-Two matters in particular have engressed the attention of the public during the past week-the inthe Pacific Railroads Commission and the wheat deal, which has reached a most re-markable position, showing vast qualities of endurance by both the longs, who are just now on top, and the shorts, who are daily expecting a collapse of the clique. The Pacific Railroads Commission has as yet taken few tricks and no honors in inestigation of Central Pacific affairs in their relations with the Government. Instead of resulting in a profit to the Government it is likely to relieve the Government of some of its troublesome surplus, according to the showing made by Senator Stanford, president of the Central Pacific railroad. In the course of his examination he submitted a detailed statement, which showed that the Governto the extent of nearly $63,000,000. Mr Stanford is a man evidently not easily excited or overweed. To questions whether their officers or agents had paid any money or valuable consideration, or done any thing for the purpose of influencing legislation, Mr. Stanford quietly but firmly replied that it was a matter which did not concern the Government, and, there fore, not its business. "Do you mean to answer that with regard to legislation," asked Mr. Pattison chairman of the commission.

"That is my answor," quietly observed the Senator, and nothing more was said on the subject. The whole matter of the investigation is looked upon by thinking of wheat, which renders it impossible to make flour and sell at profit in competition men as one of the hugest farces ever produced, and it is the general opinion that it will result in nothing of material benefit to the dear people.

venting them from getting their wheat into

A new and unexpected element has now appeared in the field, which threatens to play be no with the ring. This is the appearance of a number of outside operators who, it is asserted, are backed with plenty of coin. It is also ascertained that there are a large number of English firms who have been and still are short in the California wheat market. It is the intention of the syndicate to secure their scalps as quickly as possible, and the threat has gen made that the price of wheat will be raised from 2 to 21-2 cents daily until this end is accomplished. The infusion of this blood into the deal is an unex-pected blow to the members of the ring, who, while they may appear to the public in the light of successful manipulators, are really in a most unfortunate position. Their own ware-houses are filled to repletion with wheat, held at enormous figures, and which it is impossible to dispose of unless at a tremendous loss, and their position is such that out of their desperation they are fo ced to raise the market on themselves.

Hea.v capitalists of this city are engineering the deal. The name of John Rosenfield is mixed prominently with that of the Nevada bank as one of the factors concerned. It is believed that one leading operator will be made a scapegoat of by the combination when the collapse comes. He will be allowed to fall, and the others will keep in the background. As for those who have been putting up more margin on their contracts, the chances are that every cent of it will be swept into the maw of the pool before the ultimate collapse. The talk about millions at stake is all buncombe. While undoubtedly millions are involved examination has been made and this will consume considerable time. The failure caused some excitement in the city, although among fluorical men it was not

At ten minutes to three it was stated by Medical Congress. Weekly Weather-Crop Bulletin. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.-The Signal Office weather-crop bulletin for the week ending July 30 says: "The weather has been July 30 says: warmer than usual from southern New England and the middle Atlantic States westward to the Rocky mountains, the average daily excess being about three degrees. It was slightly cooler than usual in the eastern portion of the cotton region, and from Dakota westward to the Pacific coast. During the month of July the avcoast. During the month of July the average daily temperature was about three degrees above the normal throughout the northern States, and it was from two to three degrees cooler than usual in the Galf. States. During the period from January 1 to July 30 the season has been warmer than usual in the agricultural districts east of the Rocky mountains, except in the South Atlantic States, Northern New England and near Lake Superior. In the last-named district the daily temperature averages from two to four de-grees below the normal: During the week there has been an excess of rainfall in the States bordering on the Atlantic and in the East Gulf States,

These excessive rains have been accompanied by severe local storms, resulting in injury to growing crops and re-tarding harvest. In the central valley and lake region less than the usual amount of rain occurred, and the drought conprecaution taken by responsible parties to conceal their identity by pooling all their issues in the hands of a straw broker, Willtinnes in the corn belt extending from Ohio westward to Iowa and Kansas. Horse-Claim Harvey. WASHINGTON, Aug., 1.—Yesterday's Bal-timore Sun publishes the following Washington special: Oscar J. Harvey, whose borse-claim exploits have brought him ome notoriety as well as twelve years at Albany had many accomplishments. He was an art critic, an elecutionist, a lawyer, an expert penman and a "mild Republic-an." His voice was soft and gentle. He talked like a confidence man through a keyhole. He was fond of perfumery, and devoted to Florida water. In his desk, which just been cleaned variety of articles found, from a six-shooter to a bag of sachet powder. Every style of pen, from the smooth goose quill and the soft stub to the stiff falcon, was found, showing that Hurvey knew how to equip himself in the business of imitating signatures. There were thirteen kinds of pens in all. There were six different kinds of ink-black, violet, blue and three mixed inks which puzzled the experts (who examined them. As for can freight traffic with Mexico, and lively results may be expected. It seems now almost a settled fact that the Oregon Patific railroad, built a couple of years ago from Yuquina to Albany and which is now. the delay in adjusting his claims, Harvey took up a sheet of Irish linen paper and wrote from his room in the third auditor's office a stiff yet judicious epistic from Philadelphia. If an affidavit from a bogus horse claimant was required, Harvey took up a sheet of old-fashioned bine paper and made in quaint characters the statement of Widow Bronson that she was the mother of Charles Bronson, who lost a horse in the second battle of Bull Run. He was well

The International Medical Congress. WASHINGTON, July 3i.—The minth International Medical Congress, which is to open in Washington next September, bids fair to be the largest gathering of physicians and surgeons ever seen in this or perhaps any other country. Failure of the Columbian Bank. Philadelphia, July 31.—The Columbian Bank, a State institution, closed its doors yesterday morning, and on the door a notice was posted stating that by order of the board of directors the bank would make in assignment for the benefit of creditors. that the assignment had been made to S. Edwin Megargee and F. P. Kernan, two attorneys. All efforts to obtain any statements as to the amounts of liabilities or assets proved futile, both the bank officials and the assignees declaring that they had not had time to inquire into the condition of affairs as yet. It is believed, however, that the failure is complete one. President Bell of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, with whom the Columbian have kept an account for several years, stated that the checks of the latter were dishonored because they had

The Handsome Cowboy a Lion Among the Upper Tendom of the West End.

New York, July 31.—The following is from the Mail and Express London corres-

LONDON, July 19 .- There is no doubt about it, Buffalo Bill is the great lion of the season. Mr. John Sartain, the affable Philadelphia artist and the manager of the art department of the American exhibition, said to me yesterday: "Without Buffalo Bill this whole enterprise would have been a dead failure. He draws the immens rowds, and after the show they flock into the picture galleries and find, often to thei aston'shment, that we have some fine paint ings here. However, without the Wild West' attraction we should never have got our crowds at all. A lady who was present at a reception given some time since by the Marchiones. of Ely, told me that Mr. Cody stood in the center of the room, under the great chan-delier, his long hair streaming down over his broad, stout shoulders, literally sur rounded by a circle of titled admirers, and at the supper-table be sat at the right hand of the Princess of Wales. The fact is, he is a very handsome man, and he has succeeded, by honest enterprise, in giving the Londoners an exhibition which certainly has the unaccustomed charm of absolute novelty. Naturally, they are grateful, and for the moment hais their here. Hardly less amusing than his extraor-

Hardly less amusing than his extraordinary social success are the heated discussions as to his real merit. The following is a good illustration of this. It happened at a recent ball in this city. Buffalo Bill was parading grandly through the rooms with Mrs. John Bigelow on his arm. Hon. James G. Blaine was there, too, and so was Minister Phelps, as woll as a host of other distinguished Americans, but Buffalo Bill was, nevertheless, the center Buffalo Bill was, nevertheless, the center of attraction, and as he advanced slowly he was kept bowing without intermission to the dozens of pretty faces which happened to be in his path—quite by accident, of course. He bows, by the way, with the grace and dignity of a king. It was during this grand evation that I overheard the following conversation between a titled English lady and an independent American damsol.

"Isn't he a splendid man?" said the duchess, with onthusiasm.
"Hum," replied the other, "I don't see anything very splendid about him. He is only a cowboy anyway and no one would only a cowboy anyway and no one would recognize him at home. I think you English are too ridiculous for anything."

"Nothing but a cowboy," responded the other indignantly. "Do you know him?"

"No, I don't, nor do I wish to, either. It's bad enough to have to be in the same room with such a fellow."

"Well now I do like it. You pertend to "Well, now, I do like it. You pretend to judge the Hon. Mr. Cody without having met him or spoken to him. Let me tell you, then, from my own knowledge, that St. Louis at Philadelphia, Cincinnatis he is a most refined and cultivated gentle-man. Why, do you suppose that English Bostons at Indianapolis, New Yorks at ladies would receive him here as they do if Pittsburgh, Philadelphias at Detroit, Washhe were any thing else? Besides that, you know very well that he is one of your legislatures, wasn't he?"

"Yes, in some barbarous far Western Wichitas at Hastings, Kansas Citys at THE GRAND SCORE.

State, where there are nothing but cut-threats and Indians. No doubt he was; but I do not see how you can wish to invite to your houses a man who has spent his life in the relevated society of buffalo hunters, cowboys and squaws."

This last word was too much for the English Duchess, and she went off with a sarcastic "Thank you for the insinuation against us."

To return now to the encampment. After my young guide had, with the utmost reverence, disclosed to me the marvelous secrets of his master's tent, he led me through the entrance, over which a massive buffalo head—a fitting emblem, seems to keep guard. I found Colonel Cody and his black-haired daughter in his tent. He was dressed in a dark blue military jacket, which fitted him like a clove and showed off to perfection a splendid pair of shoulders. Under this he had a black silk shirt, beautifully embroidered in the rich Russian style, and at the waist a heavy my answer to that question. I think this a lovely country and a grand nation. I have been much surprised at the appearance of London. It is so clean, so orderly and so substantial. I had expected to find The Great Boodlor Slips Through much poverty and suffering, but I am very agreeably disappointed." "Perhaps you have not been looking for it in the right place," I saggested. "Your're right there," said he smiling,

"I have been at the other end of the social scale. By the way, here is a magmificent thing which the Prince of Wales gave me the other day. You see it is a large horseshoe in solid gold set with diamonds and rubies, and here on the inside are the three royal feathers of his family." "How are you impressed with the Prince of Wales?"

"He is a splendid man, and immensely fond of Americans. Since his visit to our country be has taken the warmest interest in our doings and prospects."
"And the Princess"

"Well, she is prettier than her daughter, and—" here my distagraished interlocutor was interrupted by a party of celebrities bishops, statesmen, pretty women, etc.-who had come to pay their respects. Niagara Falls Excursion.

In the morning Dr. Boole, a gifted minister from New York, delivered a polished address on Consecration as applied to the prohibition work, making a number of good points. Ex-Gov St. John, whose voice was a little husky, spoke in the afternoon, urging that people who favor prohibition and want to win should vote as they pray or quit repeating the Lord's prayer. As usual he paid his respects to party papers, whose editors do not devote the space to temperance that they do to sporting news and other matters. Mr. St. John left last night for Massachusetts where he has engagements to fill. He goes from that state to California. Hon. W. F. Mills, present prohibition candidate for lieutenant governor in Ohio, made the closing speech of the afternoon. He, too, touched on politics, and gave professing christains scoring for not standing by the cause through thick and thin. Mr. Mills is a very earnest and effective speaker, as are also Montague and Huckins who addressed a large crowd at night.

An Adventure With the "Wild Man of the Mountains."

"You are not afraid of getting lost?" When Dick Vincent asked this question Miss Lucy Shelton smiled scorn-

"All we have to do is to keep Pogalos Poak in sight," she replied. "With such a landmark it is impossible for us Tourists, of course. One glance at the two settled that. Their sketch books explained the object of their early morning walk.

It was too early for the guests at Prospect Cottage to be astir. These two were lovers of nature. They were in search of the picturesque, and they were determined to keep their pencils busy during their week in the Sierras. "I am in a reckless mood to-day," said Miss Lucy. "Let us seek untried fields. I don't believe that the average California tourist finds a hundredth part of the beauties hidden in these anyons and vaileys. Young Vincent did not wait to be persuaded. A pretty girl and a ramble n the heart of the Sierras were temptations not to be resisted. "A late breakfast will not matter," he remarked. "We ought to make our way back in three or four hours,"

The first blush of a gorgeous sunrise was sending wave after wave of color over the white summit of Pogalos Peak as the pair turned into a rocky defile leading westward. Birds of gay plumage flitted about among the trees, and Miss Lucy could not restrain an occasional exclamation of delight as the novel panorama was unfolded before

An hour or so of this aimless strolling brought the pedestrians to a winding pathway evidently leading downward into some hidden valley. "It is worth all the trouble and the risk," said Vincent, when they found themselves after a difficult descent in a lovely little valley of perhaps a score of acres. The locality was walled in by precipitous mountains on every side, and Vincent understood at once that the path which they had followed was doubtless the only means of communication with the outside world. "What does this mean?" he cried. The valley bore evidences of cultivation. Here and there were to be seen little patches of corn, beans and other vegetables.

Vincent and Miss Lucy looked at each other with a vague uneasiness. "We are too far from Prospect Cottage," the young man suggested.

"And we can not see Pogalos Peak," replied the young lady, nervously.
"In a wild country like this," continued her companion, "we can not be too careful. Some years age there were some very desperate outlaws in dently inhabited by some person who desires to hide himself. If we have accidentally intruded he will not like narrow pathway leading out of the valley. The man looked like a Mexican or a half-breed. He was clad in a tunic of bear skin fastened by a girdle around his waist. His face and arms were of a coppery red, and his big black eyes blazed with a ferocious glare. Worst of all, he held a musket on a straight line with the heads of his astonished visitors. "I beg your pardon, Colonel," said Vincent, with a quaver in his voice,

"but-don't shoot, old fellow-we have lost our way, you know, and want to get back to Prospect Cottage." "Yah! Yah!" "What does he say?" whispered Miss

"Come, now," appealed her escort; "this won't do. Lower your gun. We are going back." He took the frightened girl by the arm and started to leave the valley. "Me shoot! Stop!" thundered the giant. Vincent was unarmed. He had even left his pocket knife in his room. The ruffian would have to be humored. "Fine place," said the young man, sirily, "but you must get tired living here alone. If you will guide us to Prospect Cottage I will pay you well, and give you some tobacco and a bottle of brandy.

"Walk, or me shoot!" The horrible man seemed impatient, and pointed to the interior of the valley.

Pedro stood off, and leaning on his musket watched his victims with a vic-let us go! Pedro's savage response. Undoubtedly

What poor Vincent would have done can not be guessed, but just at that moment a bird sailed over the valley. "Shoot him!" said Vincent, pointing

"Ugh! Can't. Nobody hit bird so

"I can," hoasted the young man. A look of childish pleasure and curiosity flashed over the wild man's face. "If you kill him give him to me," he begged, in a tone of almost pitcous earnestness. "I'll kill him and you may have him," said Vincent. Pedro at once handed over his gun with nervous engerness. "And now," yelled Vincent, jumping in front of Miss Lucy with the musket leveled at his enemy, "show us out of here or I'll blow your head

The manuac, finding himself thus baffled and tricked, retreated a few steps. Then, in a fit of fury, be rushed forward, but the threatening musket caused him to fall back. "Pedro fool!" he groaned, smiting his breast. "Come on!" The hearts of the two leaped with joy as they saw the wild man start in the direction of the path leading to the upper plains and hills, and they followed without saying a word. Several times Pedro looked back, but each time he found Vincent ready to use the musket at a second's notice. "I see Pegalos Peak!" cried Miss "Yes, and Prospect Cottage is over there," said Vincent. "We do not need | our guide any longer. Pedro, you may go. Make tracks, old fellow." The Mexican looked thoroughly ter-"Poor Pedro!" he howled, "you won't rob poor Pedro. Give him back his gun.'

But Vincent was firm in his refusal and the crushed giant in the bear-skin tunic dejectedly took his departure. The pleasure seekers at Prospect Cottage were tremendously excited when the amateur artists made their appearance late in the day minus their sketch books, and looking decidedly the worse

"I never thought," he said, "that any of my guests would run against

To-morrow I'll get a party to catch him and send him to the asylum. He will not bother you again." All this was very reassuring, but the tourists made up their minds to leave the next day. "It is outrageous," said Miss Lucy to Vincent; "you know that last summer when you joined our party in the Adirondacks we roamed about a good deal, but you were the wildest man I Vincent showed symptoms of return-

Terrific Collision - Marvelous Escape from Loss of Life. New York, July 30.-A serious accident occurred yesterday on the Northern rail-road of New Jersey. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the escape from an appalling los their surprise, they found a rude cabin. of life was simply marvelous. About seven o'clock in the morning a wild-cat train wa speeding along toward Norwood, and the engineer was given orders to take the side-track. The train was going at a ter-rific rate when it reached the place. Eyewitnesses say the train was going at the rate of forty miles an hour. The stationnaster stood at the switch ready to open master stood at the switch ready to open it, but no signal was given and he did not open it. The Northorn railroad is leased by the Erie. A train from Nyack was started shortly after seven. It was going at a lively rate when nearing Norwood, and the two trains crashed into each other. The wild cat train train was completely demolished The cars being split into kindling wood Both engines were wrecked, The first car of the passenger train we demolished but the two passengers who where in it, becoming aware of the danger, jumped refore the collision occurred, and saved the lives. One man had his leg sprained. The reversing of the levers by the engineers prevented a more serious disaster.

Boston Papers Sued for Publishing the Hattie Lewis Sensation.

Boston, July 30.—Edward L. Lewis, father of Hattie Lewis, who, it has been stated, died in Florida from the effects of poison administered by Mr. Lewis' female traveling companion, arrived in Boston Thursday. Mr. Lewis used to be in the boot and shop business in Summer street, boot and shoe business in Sumner street and has many friends in the trade. He went around to see them in the afternoo and when they questioned him about the story he said it was all malicious nonsense Hattio's death, he said, was from natural "Work! work! or me shoot!" was rom natural causes. She had been a sufferer from this wild man of the mountains was a maniac. It would be dangerous to cross with his daughter when she died, was devoted to her, and took the best care of her during the illness. Last evening Mr. Lewis and Mrs. Cavillon, each acting through W and Mrs. Cavilon, each acting shrough w. B. The extreme cold weather of the past winter enabled me to thoroughly test its heat ing capacity; it is a powerful and eco nomical heater, requiring very little at-tention, and easily managed so as to regulate the heat. I have no hesitation recommending it to be a first-class Furnace in every respect.
